

Who Owns SpaceX Going Into Its IPO — and What the Stake Is Worth (per SEC filings)

SpaceX reportedly priced a record IPO on 3 Jun 2026 (~$1.77T; ~555.6M Class A shares at $135; Nasdaq listing ~12 Jun), after absorbing xAI in an all-stock merger on 2 Feb 2026 (~$1.25T combined). It had been private (Form D only); these listed, interval and mutual funds disclosed SpaceX in Form N-PORT / N-CSR — each row links to the filing. "SpaceX now (USD)" is the total fair value of all SpaceX lines in that filing. "Value at est. IPO" scales that mark by an illustrative $1.5-2T range (~1.2x-1.6x the ~$1.25T mark) — a press-estimate sensitivity, NOT audited.

ARK Venture Fund (ARKVX)	Continuously-offered interval fund (ARK) — low minimum, sold through brokerages/Titan.	$61M	$73-98M	A top position — held directly: common ($34.6M) + Series D preferred ($15.9M) + a SpaceX SPV ($10.0M).	N-CSRS · 1/31/2026 ↗
BlackRock Capital Allocation Term Trust (NYSE: BCAT)	Listed closed-end fund — trades like a stock; diversified multi-asset, small private sleeve.	$7M	— listed	A small SpaceX position (~$7.3M) among hundreds of holdings — minor relative to NAV.	NPORT-P · 12/31/2024 ↗

"Value at est. IPO" = current SEC mark × an illustrative 1.2x-1.6x (a $1.5-2T IPO over the ~$1.25T combined SpaceX+xAI mark; the reported IPO price of $135.00/share, ~$1.77T (3 Jun 2026), is ~1.42x — inside the range). A sensitivity, not audited and not a forecast — actual proceeds depend on lock-ups, dilution and share class. DXYZ & BCAT show "— listed": both trade on the NYSE, so they are already market-priced (often at a premium/discount to NAV) and a mark-to-IPO multiple doesn't apply.

By dollars, Baron Partners Fund is the largest holder (~$3.9B, ~37% of the fund); by share of NAV the purest listed proxy is Destiny Tech100 (NYSE: DXYZ, ~53% SpaceX). Marks already embed xAI: SpaceX absorbed it on 2 Feb 2026 and the 3/31/2026 filings carry SpaceX common at ~$526.6/share (the merger-implied price), so part of each value is xAI, not pure SpaceX.

No S&P 500 fast-track: on 4 Jun 2026 S&P Dow Jones Indices kept its S&P 500 / 400 / 600 rules unchanged — SpaceX still needs the 12-month IPO seasoning, positive GAAP net income (latest quarter + trailing four) and IWF ≥ 0.10 (~10% float), so the earliest possible S&P 500 inclusion is ~June 2027. (It did add a mega-cap fast-track to its broad Total Market / DJ U.S. TSM indices, eff. 8 Jun 2026.) Near-term, the funds above stay the main way to hold it.

Diversified fund families hold small SpaceX positions too (<~1% of NAV each; immaterial per fund), confirmed via EDGAR full-text search: Fidelity (Contrafund, Blue Chip Growth, ...), Neuberger Berman, Franklin Strategic Series.

Alphabet (GOOGL): its $900M SpaceX investment (Jan 2015) is named only in 2015-era filings; today it is folded anonymously into "non-marketable equity securities" at cost — no sized exposure. SpaceX's own EDGAR file (CIK 1181412) holds only Form D notices.

Method: holdings found via SEC EDGAR full-text search (efts.sec.gov) for "Space Exploration Technologies", each filing verified; the USD figure sums every SpaceX line (common classes + preferred series + SPVs). As-of dates differ (DXYZ 3/31/2025; BCAT 12/31/2024; rest 12/2025-3/2026) and change quarterly. Not investment advice.
