

How to Own SpaceX Before the IPO — Public Funds That Already Hold It (per SEC filings)

SpaceX is private and files only Form D. Listed closed-end funds, interval funds and mutual funds disclose their SpaceX stakes in Form N-PORT / N-CSR — each row links to the actual filing. The USD column is the total fair value of all SpaceX lines in that filing; Destiny Tech100 (DXYZ), the purest listed proxy, is shown first, then holders by SpaceX dollars.

Holder (ticker)	Vehicle — how a public investor gets exposure	SpaceX exposure (USD)	Share of the fund & holding detail (as last disclosed)	SEC filing (linked)
Destiny Tech100 (NYSE: DXYZ)	Listed closed-end fund — trades like a stock; a basket of top private companies, SpaceX is its anchor.	$36.3M	~53% of NAV via three SpaceX SPVs (DXYZ SpaceX I 38.7% + MWAM VC SpaceX-II 11.5% + Celadon 2.6%) — its dominant position.	NPORT-P · 3/31/2025 ↗
Baron Partners Fund (BPTRX)	Mutual fund (Baron Select Funds) — buy directly or via most brokerages.	$3,890M	~37% of net assets — the fund's largest holding; SpaceX common (CI A/C, $1.33B) + preferred (CI H/I, Series N, $2.56B).	NPORT-EX · 3/31/2026 ↗
Baron Focused Growth (BFGFX)	Mutual fund (Baron Select Funds) — same filing as Baron Partners.	$821M	~21% of net assets; SpaceX common (CI A/C, $544M) + preferred (Series K/N, $278M). A top holding alongside Tesla.	NPORT-EX · 3/31/2026 ↗

Coatue Innovative Strategies Fund	Interval fund (Coatue) — tech-focused private/public crossover.	$137M	~2.8% of net assets — SpaceX Class A ($85.1M) + Class C ($51.8M) lines.	NPORT-EX · 3/31/2026 ↗
ARK Venture Fund (ARKVX)	Continuously-offered interval fund (ARK) — low minimum, sold through brokerages/Titan.	$61M	A top position — held directly: common ($34.6M) + Series D preferred ($15.9M) + a SpaceX SPV ($10.0M).	N-CSRS · 1/31/2026 ↗
BlackRock Capital Allocation Term Trust (NYSE: BCAT)	Listed closed-end fund — trades like a stock; diversified multi-asset, small private sleeve.	$7M	A small SpaceX position (~$7.3M) among hundreds of holdings — minor relative to NAV.	NPORT-P · 12/31/2024 ↗

Two ways to read it: by dollars, Baron Partners Fund is by far the largest holder (~$3.9B of SpaceX, ~37% of the fund); by share of NAV, the purest listed proxy is Destiny Tech100 (NYSE: DXYZ) — ~53% SpaceX, so it trades partly as a SpaceX tracker (often at a large premium/discount to NAV). BCAT is the other NYSE-listed vehicle, but its SpaceX weight is tiny.

Diversified fund families also hold small SpaceX positions (well under ~1% of NAV each), confirmed in EDGAR full-text search but immaterial per fund: Fidelity (Contrafund, Blue Chip Growth and others), Neuberger Berman, and Franklin Strategic Series. They are not a meaningful way to bet on a SpaceX IPO.

Operating-company caveat — Alphabet (GOOGL): its $900M SpaceX investment (January 2015) is named only in 2015-era filings; current 10-Ks fold it anonymously into "non-marketable equity securities" at cost, so Alphabet gives no transparent, sized SpaceX exposure today. SpaceX's own EDGAR file (CIK 1181412) contains only Form D notices.

Method: holdings located via SEC EDGAR full-text search (efts.sec.gov) for the exact phrase "Space Exploration Technologies", then each filing verified. The USD figure sums every SpaceX line in that filing (common share classes + preferred series + SPVs). As-of dates differ (DXYZ 3/31/2025; BCAT 12/31/2024; the rest 12/2025–3/2026) and change every quarter; funds mark SpaceX to estimated fair value, not a market price. Not investment advice.
